Affected employment situations include:

- Workers who are ill with COVID-19 and unable to work;
- Workers whose employers have temporarily curtailed operations to comply with the Governor's State of Emergency Declaration;
- Workers who have been ordered by a medical professional to self-quarantine due COVID-19 or potential exposure to that disease;
- Parents who have been forced to quit or take unpaid leave to care for children as a result of the effect of the Governor's emergency closure of schools;
- Workers who have been forced to quit or take unpaid leave to care for a loved one who has contracted COVID-19; and
- Part-time workers who have lost hours due to any of the foregoing reasons.
- Workers who earn tips can include them in their calculation of wages when applying for unemployment benefits.
- Workers may continue to work part-time without losing their eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits.

If you have lost your job or have had to take reduced hours due to the effects of the Coronavirus pandemic you should apply for unemployment insurance benefits as soon as possible!

Eligibility for benefits has been expanded by the Governor's State of Emergency declarations and Federal CARES Act.

The CARES Act also authorizes Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (PUA), which expands the class of people eligible for unemployment benefits to self-employed, independent contractors, freelancers, and gig workers, who ordinarily would be ineligible for unemployment benefits because they are not classified as employees.

Anyone effected should apply!

Expanded State and Federal Unemployment benefits are being administered through Delaware's Department of Labor.
